

Dr. Alisha Hyslop has spent over 20 years working in career and technical education and is currently the Chief Policy, Research & Content Officer at the national Association for Career and Technical Education. At ACTE, Alisha leads the organization's policy, advocacy, research, program implementation and professional learning strategies to ensure educators across the CTE system have access to tools, resources and educational opportunities that enhance their ability to offer high-quality CTE programs to every learner. She has particular expertise on the Carl D. Perkins CTE Act and ACTE's High-quality CTE Initiative. Alisha received her Bachelor's in public relations and Family and Consumer Sciences Education from Florida State University, her Master's in Career and Technical Education from Virginia Tech University, and her Ph.D. in Career and Workforce Education from the University of South Florida, where she developed specific knowledge of program evaluation and has served as an adjunct instructor.